NW Advantage

NW Advantage serves the same function as a checking account—it handles the bulk of your transactions. In the case of NW Advantage, all activity settling through Northwest Corporate is transacted through this account. Funds in NW Advantage earn a variable interest rate (published daily in the Rate & Business Monitor).

MONI

In the household finance analogy, MONI is like your primary “savings” account. With MONI, you retain liquidity while earning a competitive investment rate, usually paying close to the Fed Funds Rate.

Rates are declared daily (published daily in the Rate & Business Monitor) and paid into your NW Advantage account monthly.

Plus 10

Plus 10 works like a money market account, offering the highest yields of these three accounts, but also having limited liquidity. Members may deposit to the account at any time during the first 20 days of the month, but withdrawals are not permitted. Instead, all funds deposited mature on the last working day of the month and are deposited, plus interest, into your NW Advantage account. See the daily Rate & Business Monitor for rates.
